A Home for Family Living

Two porches, a deck, and lots of windows make this 2,390-square-foot home ideal for enjoying beautiful country scenes. The wide-open plan designed by Atlanta architect V. John Tee also offers the perfect setup for an active farm family.

A front room that has a bay window could serve as a bedroom or a farm office. A connecting bath leads to another bedroom. Just down the hall is the large master bedroom and bath.

The family room features a fireplace for cozy winter gatherings and opens to the deck and screened porch for entertaining in warm weather. The cook in the household is sure to be included in both formal and informal meals because the kitchen is between the breakfast bay and the dining room.

A side-loading garage opens into a laundry area, providing easy cleanup for clothes dirtied by farm work.
